In depth

Citizen security strategy

EUROsociAL, through the European Forum for Urban Security (EFUS), collaborates with the Panamanian government in the consolidation of its national citizen security strategy, which was adopted in 2012. Specifically, the support focuses on the prevention axis, in response to citizen demands for reduced levels of insecurity.

To do this, the Programme and the Panamanian government, specifically the Ministry of the Presidency and the Ministry of Public Security, have worked primarily in three areas:

- Support for consolidation of a community policing model. To do this, the programme has encouraged Panama to learn from the experience of the Pacification Police Unit in Brazil.
- Support in the creation of a Diploma in Social Prevention of Violence for teachers. The Programme, in partnership with the Panamanian national government and the university system, created the diploma in Social Prevention of Violence, a training course aimed at civil servants, community social agents and students wishing to acquire skills in this area.
- Support for strengthening the national and local stakeholders involved in the Country Strategy for Public Security. To achieve this, EUROsociAL worked in conjunction with the Panamanian government to lay the groundwork for inter-agency working lines and between the Local Prevention Committees.

For its part, the second regional meeting for violence prevention held in Panama has enabled the Government to strengthen its strategy and to share empirical evidence of other preventive actions taken in other parts of the world.
